Kat Tracking Through Paris: A Guide to Black Paris Kat St. Thomas

KAT TRACKING THROUGH PARIS is a travel guide oriented around the cultural and culinary tastes of African American travelers. It gives readers clear, concise directions on how to get to places of interest in Paris using the metro system confidently on their own without being taxi dependent and possibly avoiding any language barrier. There is a list of over 40 restaurants (soul food, African, West Indian, Antillian), African museums, Gospel brunches, jazz, reggae, hip-hop clubs and other miscellaneous sites.

Each establishment has been literally "walked out step by step" by the author, from the nearest Metro station to the front door, in an effort to take the hassle out of your Black Paris Adventure. Each place has a review and is listed with address, phone number, and hours of operation.

There is also a section that deals with some hotels in Paris showing what famous jazz musician or writer stayed there and when.

Cat posters and cat memorabilia abound in the City of Light. The feline creature is adored by many Parisians. The author tells about the significance of the cat in Paris. How superstitious fanatics set out to rid them from the city. The spirit of the cat's nine lives persevered and the cat is now accepted, respected and looked upon as a thing of beauty by open-minded liberals. In light of the struggles the cat endured in Paris the 'Kat Tracking Through Paris' effort is to bring cohesiveness between the U.S. and France showing camaraderie by working with the hotels, restaurants and other vendors also by bringing love and leaving with fond memories. Like the Parisian cat, this Kat keeps coming back.
