THE END OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE: Extinction of Comparative/Absoluet Adavantages and disadvantages will end International Trade between Nation (Nations ... will end International trade Book 1) Austine Idi Idris

The central points of the fundamental economics principles in this revolutionary book is that International trade will end some day due extinction of comparative/absolute advantages or disadvantageous which has been a frequent global phenomena as more and more nations become advance,it is a revolutionary researched economics theory propounded by Blossom Boyo Idris, it states that as more and more nations become advance in all aspect of economic productions and in new resources discoveries(including natural and man made deposits),extinction of comparative /absolute advantages and disadvantages will end international trade, exceptions are patent products created by the act of innovation and inventions, products from these two acts will cause minimal cyclic flow of trade between nations, even at that competitive substitutes will abort the circles prematurely, instead of ten(10) years, trade between nations will last 3 to 4 years per cycles,sold volumes will be very low ,nevertheless innovation will rule the world. As more nations become advance, the gap of economic production and productivity between nations in all ramification will become extinct leading ultimately to the end of international trade, indeed all nations want to be advanced, this is not a mere premise, but an established fact, each time nations make advance across my novel scale of economic growth and advancement, decrease in rate and volume of international trade occur, central point of discuss concerns economic advancement, types of economic status,, resource discovery, and roles of invention and innovation,
