Sh*t Doesn't Just Happen!!: a handbook of Supersoul Spirituality Ian Lawton

Would you like to de-stress your life and take back complete control? How liberating would it be if you could remove much of the hurt from the painful experiences in your life? How would you like to guarantee yourself that you'll never be a victim of anyone or anything ever again?

Do you believe in the 'law of attraction'? Do you ever wonder how 'consciously creating' squares with the idea of karma carried over from past lives, or of having a semi-predetermined 'life plan'? Might this not get in the way, and restrict your free will to manifest the life you desire?

On the other hand, what if we were to properly acknowledge the advice we've been given by the wisest sources of channelled wisdom for decades - that our concept of reincarnation is way too simplistic? What if they're right that our lives don't really follow one after the other but are happening alongside each other in the 'eternal now' - irrespective of the fact they appear to involve different human eras?

This idea of simultaneous lives might be difficult for our mere human brains to understand, but what would the implications be, particularly for the ideas of 'past-life' karma and of 'next-life' planning? What if instead we're forced to form a model of soul consciousness that perfectly dovetails with the law of attraction and shows that, subject to our 'birth givens', each of us is entirely responsible for generating all the experiences we're having in our life - via our own thoughts, beliefs and intentions?

More than this are we finally ready, both individually and collectively, to reawaken to the truth of who and what we really are? To be reminded that we're not mere human beings buffeted by outrageous fortune or a vindictive deity - but instead each of us, no matter how apparently high or low, is a divine 'creator god' with incredible power and wisdom?
