The burning of fossil fuels has ignited significant technological achievements, but it has made our path to a flourishing world unattainable. Now, we are forced to choose from proposed "solutions" like the continued oxidization of fossil fuels and the acceptance of nuclear proliferation and government control. All options fail to avoid environmental disintegration and societal chaos. We have to find a new way if we want to secure our future on this planet. Enter pluvinergy: a renewable energy system that structures the rain cycle into the beneficial architecture of a machine. Pluvinergy engineers a new path with its revolutionary process. These findings divert humanity from a dystopian nightmare towards a healed and harmonious world.
