Mortal Sin And How To Avoid It C.M. Rev. William P. O'Keefe

Few souls are so completely debased, so sunk in sin, as not to desire something to shed their bad habits and lead better lives. God's Mercy follows ever the most errant of us, ever urging us on to better things, even working in us what is good, ever striving to save us from ourselves. We may dim the light of conscience in our souls, and become progressively unresponsive to the invitations and urges of grace, but only in Hell is there utter darkness and no grace; while we live there is always a real possibility and hope of conversion and salvation.
